BOROUGH TAX RATE REMAINS AT TEN-THREE

Budget Is Adopted Based on Figures For 1924; See Deficit, But No Raise.

As predicted Friday, the borough tax rate for 1925 will be the same as in 1924, ten mills for general purposes and three mills for special purposes, an ordinance embodying these figures having been passed without discussion at the March meeting of the borough council, Friday evening.

From the general fund raised by the 10 mill tax, the borough pays its operating expenses, such as the building of sewers, streets, salaries and actual running expenses, while from the special fund are met the interest on loans for permanent improvements and the redemption of such obligations.

$33,687.59 Expenses

The town spent $33,687.59 during 1924, which, with the budget system of expenditures inaugurated last year, was a considerable saving over the preceding twelve months. Continuing with a policy of strictest economy, the borough hopes to come out of 1925 with as good a showing as it made last year.

In the budget of expenditures for 1925, based on actual expenditures of 1924, unanimously adopted at the Friday evening meeting, there will be an estimated deficit in the special fund at the end of this year of $1,112.50. Despite this fact, the tax rate for special purposes was left unchanged, the councilmen expressing the belief that probably by savings in the general fund this deficit in the special fund can be made up.

Highway Item

Funds with which to operate the borough's motor truck during 1924 were taken from the item "Highways." No provision was made in the 1924 budget for motor truck expenses, so the cost of operating the machine was placed under the highway item. Actually, $480 was spent on the truck last year, and in the 1925 budget, that amount is set aside for that purpose. Consequently, there is a reduction of more than $900 in the estimated expenditures for the highway department.

$2326 RECEIVED FOR AMBULANCE

$177.37 Contributed Since Last Report Swells Total; Use Balance For Endowment Fund.

Contributions to the $2,000 fund for the purchase of a chassis for an ambulance, the drive for which was reported over the top on Friday, continue to swell the total.

With $2,148.72 reported on Friday, the total of the chassis fund was increased to $2,326.09 by the addition of voluntary donations in Gettysburg and throughout the county of $177.37 since the last report.

Subscription lists in Abbottstown and East Berlin as yet have not been heard from and from a number of the other towns in the county come reports to the committee that additional donations were being received. On the basis of these reports, the committee today predicted that the drive would total $2,500.

Funds in excess of the amount necessary to buy the chassis will be placed in an endowment fund, the committee stated, to pay for the upkeep of the truck and pay operating expenses when patients are unable to pay the small charges which will be asked for the machine's services.

New Contributions

Adams-Franklin Senator Lauded As An Orator By Correspondent

Norman L. Bonbrake Rising to Leadership in State Legislative Body; Asked His Opponent's Sweetheart to Vote For Him.

Thomas F. Healey, Harrisburg correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, writing for his newspaper under the heading "The Mirror of Harrisburg," pays a glowing tribute to Norman L. Bonbrake, of Chambersburg, state senator from the Adams-Franklin district, as an orator and leader.

Discussing orators in general in the state senate and house, Mr. Healey says "there are few of them here." The major portion of his article is devoted to the ability of Senator Bonbrake and, in part, reads:

"The gift of speech will go far toward bringing a man out. We had an illustration of that in the Senate the other night. Here the average of ability is about on a par with the House. Until this particular evening Stites, of Montgomery, was reckoned the orator of the Assembly. Then Senator Norman L. Bonbrake, of Franklin, arose to riddle the arguments of the supporters of the Child-Labor Amendment. Bonbrake is a new man. He had quietly subordinated himself to the legislative routine and had been lost sight of. Now he is a figure in the Senate. His performance was such that even the correspondents, who hear many speeches, were remarkably impressed. The ease of Bonbrake, his careful phrasing, his sincerity and the total absence of bluff and bluster in his arguments caught the attention of the Senate, the galleries and the writers. The last characterized his effort as 'the first civilized speech of the session.' The adjective aptly fits the case. The speech was civilized because the speaker gave every evidence of knowing what he wanted to say and just how to say it without flourish, bombast or blah.

"I went around to Bonbrake's desk the next day to talk with him. I had been informed he was a noted figure in his community long before he had considered active work in politics. As a lawyer he has high standing, and in a quiet way has been known as a speaker of charm and convincing eloquence.

Congressman Norman L. Bonbrake

But there is much more to him than that. You see in his face the indications of high intelligence, and as you talk with him you catch the reflection of a keen understanding of the problems of the day. With becoming modesty, he grasped his first opportunity and did what other men never suceed in doing. A studious and charming gentleman who has a future in the Senate, if he is not caught in the web which destroys individual progress.

"He came to Harrisburg as the successor of D. Edward Long, a valiant knight of reform. Bonbrake is no reformer. He is an organization man, but it is rather difficult to believe he is the type who would lightly surrender his opinions at the dictation of an individual or a group. His friends say he is a man of courage, and they illustrate that characteristic with a little story. They say he had the temerity to ask his opponent's sweetheart to vote for him."

MIDNIGHT FALSE ALARM REPORTED

Telephone Call Reports Automobile Afire at 12:30 This Morning; No Clue Found.

"My automobile is on fire, near Larkie Bucher's, on the Lincoln Highway; come at once."

This message from an unknown sender was received at the Gettysburg fire engine house shortly before 12:30 o'clock this morning, and an alarm sounded.

Record runs to the reported spot were made by the Brockway engine and the service truck, with a good representation of firemen, but when the apparatus arrived at the designated place, the firemen found that the alarm was false.

Investigation failed to uncover the sender of the false alarm, which was received over the Cumberland Valley telephone, from one of the highway boxes, it is believed.

Firemen will continue to investigate the false alarm, and bring prosecution against the perpetrator.

WOMAN INJURED AT YORK STATION

Mrs. Charles Pfeffer, Steinwehr Avenue, Fractures Bone In Right Ankle When Thrown From Train.

Thrown from the step of a passenger coach from which she was alighting in York, Friday, by the sudden backing of the train, Mrs. Charles Pfeffer, Steinwehr avenue, extended, suffered a fracture of a bone in her right ankle.

The Gettysburg woman was returning from Washington, where she had spent two weeks with her brother and sister. She was being assisted from the coach by a trainman, when the train lurched backward, throwing Mrs. Pfeffer to the station platform, despite the efforts of the trainman to save her.

A York physician gave the woman treatment, after which she was brought to her home here.

This morning the injured woman was taken to the Warner hospital for an X-ray picture to determine if the bones are properly set.

LOTT APPOINTED COUNTY AUDITOR

President Judge Donald P. McPherson Names Highland Township Man to Succeed Late G. M. Deatrick.

Acting on the petition presented to Judge D. P. McPherson on Monday, the court late Friday afternoon appointed Samuel C. Lott, Highland tonship, as auditor to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of George M. Deatrick, of Gettysburg, Republican member of the board.

According to Judge McPherson's order, Mr. Lott is to hold office until the next general election, which occurs in November, 1927. Mr. Deatrick's term would have expired in December, 1927.

Mr. Lott, who was defeated for a position on the auditing board at the general election in 1923, is highly recommended as capable for the position to which he has been appointed. He has held various offices in Highland township for a number of years being auditor there.

Completing Work

The county auditors, having a Democratic majority on the board, are nearing the completion of their work on the annual audit of the various county officials' accounts for 1924, and Mr. Lott will be called upon to assist in making up the reports.

The other members of the board were anxious that an additional auditor be appointed as soon as possible after Mr. Deatrick's death, so that their report could be presented in regular form, signed by three auditors.

Another petition, that of John Black, Cumberland township, was presented to court for the vacancy, along with that of Mr. Lott.

18-HOLE GOLF COURSE PLANNED

Private Enterprise With Community Support Is Now Underway; Will Erect Club-House.

A number of Gettysburg people have joined in a movement to promote, as a private enterprise with the community's support, an eighteen-hole golf course to be laid out on the 200-acre farm of D. J. Forney, along the Mummasburg road and adjacent to the battlefield, it was learned this morning. Definite decision to proceed with the enterprise was reached at a meeting of interested persons this week, this newspaper was authoritatively informed.

A corporation is to be formed and stock in the company will be disposed of to interested persons locally, under the plans. A canvass has convinced those promoting the project that a golf course and club house would not only be supported by Gettysburg golf enthusiasts, but would draw heavily upon tourists for business, and also would prove attractive to golfers in nearby cities.

Erect Club House

It is also planned to erect a building on the property to be used as club house, with a spacious dining room, lockers and a few sleeping rooms. Arrangements will be made, it is stated, to increase the number of sleeping rooms as the demand for them is created.

A statement given this newspaper in connection with the enterprise by an interested party follows in full:

"At a meeting of interested parties held this week, it was definitely decided to go ahead with the preliminaries looking to the establishment of a golf course on the property along the Mummasburg road owned by D. J. Forney. This location has been decided upon as being most advantageous for the purpose, and only after a number of other properties were considered. The fact that there is an abundance of water available is one strong point in favor of this site, along with its accessibility not only to local residents, but to battlefield visitors as

PROBE PLANS OF STOCK SALESMEN

Activities of Two Strangers Here Halted by Chamber of Commerce and Local Banker.

The activities in Gettysburg and Adams county of two stock salesmen, said to be from Lancaster, were halted this morning by Millard B. Simmons, secretary of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, in cooperation with a Gettysburg bank.

At the same time, public warning was sounded by the chamber secretary and the head of one of the banking institutions for all persons to investigate thoroughly before making investments in securities offered them by strangers.

It was learned early today that certain securities were being offered for cash investment, or in exchange for other securities, following previous correspondence with prospective investors by the house the visiting salesmen represented. After a conference this morning between a local banker, Secretary Simmons and the solicitors offering the securities, the solicitors agreed to suspend their operations in Adams county until they secured and submitted to the Chamber of Commerce their registration certificate as bone fide stock salesmen, together with their licenses by the state and approval of the securities they are offering by the state department of banking. "In this and all similar cases," the statement continued, "the citizens of Gettysburg and Adams county, whether members of the Chamber of Commerce or not, are urged to call the secretary's office for information before investing in securities offered by strangers. This is part of the Chamber of Commerce's service to the community.

The salesmen were said to be selling the stock of a well-known Canadian motor car company, by a method which the state department of banking warned against as illegal.

TURKEY BRINGS .92 A POUND AT SALE

Turkeys sold from 75 to 92 cents a pound, an unprecedented price at this season of the year, at the W. P. Bosserman public sale in Hamilton township, Friday. The sale amounted to $3,516.06. Good prices prevailed throughout.

One turkey, the largest of the flock, was knocked down by Auctioneer Thompson at 92 cents a pound, thereby setting a record price for that kind of fowl at this season of the year. Turkeys were selling at 35 cents a pound live weight in Gettysburg on Friday.

Two pairs of mules sold for $705 at the sale; the highest horse was auctioned off at $100; the best cow at $97.50; shoats at $11.50, and a brood sow at $43.

HAWKING AND PEDDLING LAW SIDETRACKED

Although the ordinance to regulate the conduct of transient retail merchants passed by unanimous vote of council at the March meeting Friday evening, the ordinance to regulate hawking, peddling and house-to-house canvassing failed to "make the grade," and was sent back to committee.

Before a merchant in the transient retail class may open up in business here, he must first procure a license from the burgess, which will be issued for the period of only one month, under the provisions of the ordinance, and cost $50 a month, or fractional part thereof.

It was pointed out at the meeting that the provisions of the ordinance do not apply to merchants, previously established in business here, who, by reason of fire or other circumstances, are forced to move into other quarters.

Neither does the ordinance apply to farmers selling their own produce, nor to any sale of goods, wares or merchandise donated by the owners, the proceeds of which are to be applied to any charitable or philanthropic purpose. This permits the holding of food sales by church and other organizations, it was explained.

Fine Of $50

The fine for violation of any of the provisions of the ordinance is fixed at not less than $50 nor more than $100, or, in default, imprisonment in the county jail for not more than 30 days.

Harry Koch, one of the councilmen from the third ward, blocked passage of the hawking and peddling ordinance by placing a motion that the ordinance be tabled until a full meeting of the council. Jesse Snyder, another third ward councilman, seconded Mr. Koch's motion. The vote stood two

CLEANER TOWN IS SCHNURMAN'S AIM

N. B. Schnurman, Baltimore street, one of the councilmen from the third ward, is a strong and consistent booster for a better and cleaner Gettysburg at all times. He was one of those who advocated the erection of a new sewage treatment plant and the cleaning up of the stench in Rock Creek.

At Friday evening's meeting of town council, Mr. Schnurman urged a stricter enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting spitting on the sidewalks. He cited numerous instances of violations of this statute and called upon the councilmen to direct the police of Gettysburg to fine every violator, who is reported to them.

DEATH REPORT IS STILL A MYSTERY

Lack of confirmation today of the report received in New Oxford on Friday that Arthur J. Cashman, of Columbus, Ohio, formerly of New Oxford, had been found dead in bed led to expressions of the belief in that town that the report was erroneous.

James Barnitz, of New Oxford, a brother-in-law of Mr. Cashman, who is his nearest relative in that town, this morning said he had received no information since Friday, when word of Mr. Cashman's purported death was received from Harrisburg, by telephone. It is now believed that the sender of the message either was confused in the name or that a practical joker was at work.

Writes Humorous Sketch for Dinner

One of the most pleasant occasions of the year at Gettysburg College was the dinner tendered by Dr. and Mrs. Henry W. A. Hanson to the entire teaching staff of the institution and their wives at the Eagle Hotel, Friday evening.

Promptly at 6:30 o'clock, Dr. and Mrs. Hanson began to receive their guests, numbering 85, as they entered the beautifully decorated dining room. Honored guests, John F. Dapp, Harrisburg, president of the board of trustees of the college, and Mrs. Dapp, and Dr. Jesse Lenker, a prominent physician of Harrisburg, and Mrs. Lenker, also were in the receiving line.

The guests were scarcely seated when a humorous sketch on family and college life was staged, "Late, or the Last Word at Home," the name of the sketch, was written especially for the occasion by Mrs. Hanson. Those taking part in the performance were Dr. and Mrs. Rudolph Rosenstengel, Dr. Frank Kramer, Professor McAllister, Mrs. T. L. Cline, Miss Musselman, and Professor and Mrs. Jerome C. Jackson.

Many Unusual Features

During the evening, many unusual "stunts" were indulged in, adding much to the merriment of the occasion. Dr. Charles F. Sanders received a "telegram" from the philosopher "Plato;" Dr. Richard A. Arms, coach of all the college plays, received one from "William Shakespeare;" Captain S. C. Thompson, one from "George Washington;" W. W. Wood, football coach, one of the "King of Zuzuland," and Dr. Kramer, one from "King George."

Each message had some humorous hit at the various departments represented by the professors. Other numbers on the program of entertainment consisted of two delightful solos by Mrs. Rosenstengel, tenor solos by Mr. Thomas, of the college, all of which were heartily received; humorous redaings by Professor Jackson. Throughout the evening, a number of the old familiar songs were sung, led by Mr. Sperry and Mr. Schmidt, both of the college glee club.

Announces College Dinner

At the close of the banquet, Dr. Hanson announced that the third annual "college family dinner" would be held next October, after which the guests stood and sang "Alma Mater."

Mrs. Hanson was gowned in embroidered peach-colored georgette, trimmed with ostrich. Mrs. Dapp wore a blue wedding ring velvet gown, with rhinestone ornaments, while Mrs. Lenker was attired in a dress of silver cloth, handsomely embroidered in Egyptian figures.

DISCUSS SITE OF NEW PENITENTIARY

Availability of the thousand-acre tract of land the state bought years ago in the vicinity of Bowmansdale, near Dillsburg, on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg road, as a site for an institution for cure of inebriates, for use as a location for a new Eastern Penitentiary, has cropped up in a hearing held by the state senate committee on appropriation bills for a site and start on a new eastern state's prison.

It was the first time the tract has been heard of in a long time, and while there is not much danger of it ever being made the site of a prison, the mention caused much comment.

The project for the inebriates' home was put out of business by Mr. Volstead, and it was then suggested it be employed as a hospital for drug addicts, but the state started to get into deep water financially and that was laid away. Two years ago the state administration referred to the place as the New Cumberland state hospital site, which created more or less confusion, and then it was forgotten again.

That life is long which answers life's great end.

Maryland Penitentiary Official Says Prisoner Works His Own Business; Examine Books.

(By Associated Press.)

Baltimore, March 7.—Colonel C. B. Sweezey, warden of the Maryland penitentiary, today defended his course in permitting D. M. Morgan, 28-year-old convict, to conduct a mailing agency from the prison, an enterprise which is receiving the attention of local authorities.

Denying that Morgan who is nearing the end of a five year sentence for passing worthless checks was granted unwarranted privileges, the warden denounced the publicity given the matter as a "cowardly attack" upon a man who is trying to make good and who is not in a position to fight back. The warden said he did not intend to interfere with Morgan's business activities, but would inspect his books more closely because of the publicity given the affair. Nothing fraudulent has been disclosed in Morgan's activities the warden added.

"I would rather have the inmates here busy in directing legitimate business than idle in their cells planning ways to escape or indulging in some vicious habit," Colonel Sweezey said. "The purpose of a penitentiary is to turn men back to society fit to mingle with other people. That is what I am trying to do."

TWO-HEADED CALF BORN DEAD TODAY

A freak of nature, in the form of a two-headed calf, born Wednesday on the farm of Theodore Baker, near Cashtown, is attracting considerable attention at the home of William M. Biggs, veterinary surgeon, South Washington street.

The freak calf was born dead, although it is fully developed in every respect. The two heads, both of them perfectly formed, are on one neck. It is said at the Biggs residence that such monstrosities seldom live for any length of time after birth.

The unusual animal has been photographed, and it is understood the two heads are to be mounted.

FUGITIVE SHOT IN PISTOL FIGHT

(By Associated Press.)

Ellwood City, Pa., March 7.—Exhausted after a nine hour chase and wounded in a pistol battle with police, Edward Kiduff, 40, was in a hospital today following his arrest on a robbery charge. The chase which resulted in Kiduff's arrest extended more than 100 miles from Ellwood City to Punxsutawney and back to Butler. More than 100 bullets were exchanged in pistol battles during the chase.

When police went to the plant of the National Tube Company here to arrest Kiduff yesterday he fled. The police believing the man might go to Punxsutawney where he formerly lived boarded a freight train going in that direction. When the train arrived at that town Kiduff also jumped off the train much to the surprise of the police.

After an exchange of shots Kiduff jumped aboard another freight train bound for Butler. Police at Butler were notified and attempted to arrest him when the train arrived there. Another battle followed during which Kiduff went down with a bullet in his leg.

$650 Bail Is Lost When Defendant Is Reported Missing

Cash bail in the sum of $650, posted for the appearance at a preliminary hearing before Justice J. L. Hill, of William Knisely, Harrisburg, charged with the illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, was forfeited to the county, when Theodore Magnelli, of Harrisburg, the bondsman, said he was unable to locate the defendant.

Knisely was arrested several weeks ago on the road between Cross Keys and Hampton, when the roadster in which he was driving with an alleged confederate upset, disclosing a cargo of alleged intoxicating liquor. The liquor and the machine were confiscated by the authorities.

A light, new roadster truck, abandoned by the thief or thieves just west of New Oxford, was recovered Friday afternoon by members of the local substation of the state police and turned over to the owner, E. A. Wagner, Harrisburg. The truck was stolen in Harrisburg on Friday.

When it was recovered, the machine was in good running condition, and had a supply of gasoline and oil.

TENNANT WILL PILOT TOSSERS

Star Forward on Maroon and White Squad Is Unanimously Elected Captain of Team For Next Year.

James Tennant, Chambersburg street, one of the mainstays of the Gettysburg High School basketball team for three years, was elected captain of the 1925-26 squad after the game with Lancaster High School, at Lancaster, Friday evening. His selection was unanimous.

Tennant started playing basketball with the reserves of the high school in his Freshmen year, and immediately demonstrated his ability to coaches and spectators alike. His varsity berth became assured on one occasion, when he was substituted for William Scott, the newly-elected captain, and displayed a wealth of talent which won him instant praise.

Since that time, he has been a tower of strength on the offensive, while his work on the defense has been far above the average expected of a forward. He has always led his teammates in number of points scored, and at the close of the local team's season in the Pennsylvania Scholastic league, Tennant was third high scorer.

SET DATES FOR PRIMARIES AND ELECTION DAY

The primary election to choose party nominees for borough and township officers will be held Tuesday, September 15. The general election, when the officers are elected, will be Tuesday, November 3. These officers will take office next January. There are many other important dates on the political calendar for the year, most of them hinging on the election activities.

Nomination petitions may not legally be circulated for signatures before July 9, and any time thereafter may be deposited with the county commissioners until August 18, the last day for receiving such petitions. August 24 is the last day to file objections to candidates' petitions which have been filed.

Candidates and political committees have fifteen days after the primary and thirty days after the general election to file expense accounts. The primary expense account must be filed not later than September 20, if over $50. December 3 is the last day to file expense accounts at the November election.

Retired Reading Manufacturer Is Killed By Machine

Reading, March 7.—Harry M. Albright, 61, for many years a shoe manufacturer here, was almost instantly killed at Hershey when about to re-enter his car, which had stopped on the main highway there at midnight for minor repairs, on his way home from Scranton. Another motorist, traveling at high speed, struck him and fled.

Albright's wife, in the car, and Herman Seavers, a garage man, who had made the repairs, witnessed the accident. State police were immediately notified, but the motorist, running toward Lebanon, was not captured.

Albright, his skull crushed, died a few minutes after the accident. The car that struck him was a high powered machine, reddish in color, with two tires on the rear of the body. The machine roared throughout the town after striking Albright.

Stock Company

"It is the intention of the interested people to organize a stock company, after proper authority for the same has been granted by the state authorities, and this course, if followed, will mean that the public will have an opportunity to help in the establishment of what is generally admitted to be a community need, and also to participate in the profit of the enterprise. Notice of the articles of incorporation will be published in the Gettysburg Times within the next few weeks, at which time a complete statement as to method of operation, financing and similar information will be available, along with the names of the sponsors of the project, who for the present have asked that their identities be kept secret. Surveyors and experts in the work of laying out courses are now at work on the property, and it was largely on their preliminary reports, all of which were favorable, that the above tract was decided upon."

HAWKING AND

for passage and two to defer, with President Peckman not voting. The tie, however, forced the presidential hand, and inasmuch as there were only five of the nine councilmen present at the meeting, two of the absentees being members of the ordinance committee, President Peckman cast his ballot for tabling the ordinance.

The hawking ordinance was changed but little since its last presentation by P. C. Stock, chairman of the ordinance committee. The only major change was a provision which prohibits the selling of tawdry jewelly, "snake" oil, so-called fountain pens and other knick-knacks in Center Square or within one block of the square.

Fire House Repairs

Mr. Stock, who was chairman of a committee appointed at the February meeting to investigate the need and make report of estimates on a proposed addition to the fire engine house, told council the committee was of the opinion that more room was needed, but that it had been unable to secure estimates of the costs, other than rough figures. He stated that a concrete floor should be laid in the engine house and in any proposed addition, and estimates on that work were given, but council took no action on any fire company matters during the evening.

Rev. S. L. Rice and Samuel Weikert, the former a resident of Cumberland township, just beyond the borough limits on Steinwehr avenue, and the latter, his neighbor, who resides within the borough line, recited their grievances over a sewer connection before council.

It was said that Mr. Weikert refuses to allow workmen to dig up a sewer from the Rice residence, which enters the former's sewer before it enters the borough's pipes. This arrangement, which has been in force for a number of years, is the result of an agreement between Brady and Harry Sefton, former owners respectively of the Rice and Weikert properties.

Rev. Mr. Rice asked council for permission to proceed with the opening of his sewer, but it was pointed out that the connection with the borough's sewer was illegal, and that the sewer committee would have to investigate before he could be allawed to proceed, unless Mr. Weikert gave him permission. Mr. Weikert stated at the meeting that he would refuse Rev. Mr. Rice to proceed, since, as he said, he was informed by J. Donald Swope, borough solicitor, that he was illegally allowing the minister's sewer to enter his sewer and thence into the town system.

Councilmen present at the meeting were: Frank R. Peckman, Jesse E. Snyder, N. B. Schnurman, P. C. Stock and Harry Koch.

By Victor Rousseau

See here, Estelle," he continued, "you and me've got to work together on this game and not try to cross one another. Play fair with me and I'll play fair with you. I want you to make that girl act sensible. She's like a tigress. Now you're an intelligent woman. You know how I feel about her, and quarrelling won't help matters. It won't last, and then I'll come back to you—"

Estelle drew her hands out of Rathway's grasp and placed them on his shoulders, looking searchingly into his face.

"Now, Jim, I want you just to listen to me," she said. "You know you've never gone wrong when you've followed my advice. And I guess you know I'm the only friend you've got in the world, don't you, Jim?"

"Well, what if that's so?" he muttered.

"Aye," he sneered, "and you told me old Pelly's mine didn't exist. And I've got the gold! I've got the gold, I tell you!" he cried exultantly.

"I was wrong, then, but that was a matter of fact and not of judgment. Jim, you know this is nothing but an infatuation of yours. As you said, it won't last. And what are you going to do with her afterward? You know what it'll mean to you." Estelle was pleading now. "You know when McGrath learns the truth, he'll raise the whole country against you. Let her go, Jim. What do you mean to do?"

"You know what I mean to do!" snarled Rathway; but he could not meet her gaze.

Estelle laid her hand on his arm. "Jim, did you ever have pity on any one in your life?" she asked.

"Oh, maybe, when I was young and foolish."

"Did you ever feel respect for any woman, Jim?"

"Ah, cut out that line of talk, Estelle! Don't try to ride the moral horse when it's just plain jealousy—one female jealous of another. That's all it is."

"It's not, Jim. And you'll regret what you're planning to do. Jim, I—I feel you're slipping your neck into a noose—"

He leaped back and swore violently at her. "Cut out that talk, I tell you!" he shouted, almost beside himself.

"Jim, listen—just listen. I guess I'm not what anyone would call a good woman, but I was like that girl once, and—I can't bear it, Jim. Jim, I'll do anything in the world for you if you'll have pity on her. It may be there's jealousy, too, but it's much more—much more for her sake—and for yours."

Estelle was working herself into one of her hysterical frenzies. Rathway grew crafty. It is not easy for a man to fool a woman, except when she is in love with him. Then it isn't very hard. And Estelle was desperately eager to be deceived.

"See here, Estelle," said Rathway gently, "you know if I let her go what would happen. I've got to keep her here till I know there's going to be no come back. I've got to see this thing through. She'll come to no harm at my hands."

Estelle looked at him eagerly. "Jim, you mean that?" she cried. "You swear that you mean it?"

"I mean more than that. You know me and you are partners, through thick and thin, for a good while now, though we've had our quarrels. Well, I won't deny what you said about an infatuation. But I'm getting to see things reasonable. And you're my old partner, Stella."

What a fool the woman was—all women were! She was clinging to him, looking up at him with that absurd expression on her face that had once set his heart leaping. How he hated her!

"Jim! Jim, dear. If I could dare to believe what you're saying—"

"Oh, I guess you can believe me, Stella," Rathway answered easily. "I'll have to keep her here a week or so, just to show McGrath I'm not running away. You see, there's Anderson's accident. He fell down the cliff—killed at once, of course; and if I was to go away now, they'd think there'd been foul play or something."

"You—you swear it was an accident, Jim?"

"Sure it was! So you see, Stella, I've got to keep her here a little while. Then we'll get away from here forever, you and me, and the gold."

"Oh, Jim, you've made me happier than I've been since—since you seemed to cease to care. You do care for me a little, Jim?" she asked, nestling against him.

"As much as ever," answered Rathway. And, as she twined her arms about his neck, he bent and kissed her. It was the kiss of Judas. But Estelle, happy again to feel her love returned, only lifted her lips to his in a touch that made him wince at his own treachery.

"Then I'll go and stay with that poor girl tonight, Jim, dear," she said, "and tell her that there's nothing to be afraid of."

Rathway, taken by surprise, managed to keep his countenance, but when Estelle had departed for the hut, he broke into almost maniacal curses. D—n her! She had tricked him with her very innocence!

And once again he found himself in the old predicament; he could take the gold and leave the girl, or he could wait till the opportunity arose to take Joyce, certain that meanwhile his men would demand their shares. Eight of them!

He fell into a gnashing fury. He had risked so much, and this fool of a woman had balked him at the end!

Hour after hour that night Estelle sat beside Joyce in the hut among the reeds, soothing her, mothering her, coaxing her to eat, and trying to restore her tottering mind to sanity.

Hour after hour, Joyce, at her side, sat staring out into the darkness, and did not utter a word.

And hour after hour Rathway sat drinking in his hut on the promontory, and seeking that intoxication that persisted in eluding him, without which he could not shake off the uncertainties that oppressed him.

He must get Estelle out of the way. The thought of Joyce was unbearable—Joyce, whom he had caught a second time, only to find himself enmeshed in a web of unforeseen things, flimsy, and yet like iron bars between them.

If he attacked Estelle she would shrink from nothing. She carried a pistol, too. He dared not stain his hands with another murder. He was afraid of her trust in him, which had disarmed him; and, to be fair with him, he shrank from such a finale to his association with her.

The face of Lee, upturned and white and ghastly in the current, stared at him from the walls, as Pelly's used to do. He shook his fist at it. It drove him out, to pace the promontory; then he would return and hurl himself into his chair savagely, and drink again. And again he would fling himself from the hut; and all the while the conflict raged in his soul.

He could hear his men muttering about the fire. They were drunk, no doubt, but they had never acted that way in drunkenness before. Something was brewing. He must act that night. He must act soon. He must gag that wild cat, Estelle.

And the face of Joyce rose up before his eyes again. He went back, drained his glass, put out his light. He waited a minute till the liquor began to race through his veins, planning what he should do—

"Jim!"

He started. His hands leaped to his pistol as two shadows glided in through the doorway. Shorty and Pierre advanced openly toward him.

"Stop there!" he growled. "Well?" What d'you want?"

They shifted uneasily in front of him. "Well, there's ben some grumblin' about that gold, Jim," Shorty vouchsafed. "The boys kinder seem to think you ain't plannin' to play fair with 'em. They've put Kramer on guard to watch the motor-boat in case you might be aimin' to git away with her."

"What's that?" snarled Rathway.

He sprang to his feet. From the door of the hut he could discern a shadowy figure near the parapet. For an instant he was about to rush at it in his rage. But then his cunning came to his aid. He turned back into the hut.

"What's their game—and yours?"

Shorty hesitated. "Well, ya see, Jim, me and Pierre's allus stood by ya, and we kinder thought we'd let ya know the boys has been talkin' things over among themselves—"

Rathway smiled sourly. He knew the pair of them would not have hesitated to side with the mutineers if they had thought there was any chance of outwitting him. Pierre and Shorty knew Rathway's vigilance, his infinite resource.

"Spill it!"

"Well, Jim, I guess they're gettin' ready to rush you, now you've put out your light. They're aiming to tie you up and git away with the gold in the motor boat."

"Just to tie me? They wouldn't hurt me?" Rathway snickered, and the pair shuffled their feet uncomfortably.

He laughed. And his plans to meet this situation leaped into his mind. He must let the men attack, and then, when he had finished with them, he'd make short work of Pierre and Shorty and Estelle too. His confidence was coming back.

"They sent me and Pierre to see if you'd gone to sleep here."

"Well, I aint," Rathway returned, laughing again. He knew his nonchalance at once discomfited and bound them to him through fear. "I've gone to the hut across the neck to say good night to the girl, and maybe, if she presses me, I won't be hurrying away. Get that?" he asked, as they guffawed self consciously.

Richard Hotaling, a wealthy clubman, was implicated by King and Madison as the alleged poison plotter, so he might gain control of the huge Hotaling estate, but he has branded the story as false.

BULLETS CLOSE SEASON MAR. 10

Western Maryland to Play Last Game of Season Here Tuesday, Instead of Next Saturday.

Gettysburg closes its basketball season at college on Tuesday evening with Western Maryland, instead of on the 14th as previously scheduled and announced.

Coach Doyle Leathers stated this morning that the final game of the season would be played in the college gymnasium, Tuesday evening, instead of on Saturday. The change in the playing date was made because of the desire of Coach Ira Plank to get his baseball cohorts out for the initial practice. Several cagers are prospective members of this year's baseball team and Coach Plank did not want to issue his first call for training until the close of the basketball season.

Tonight the Bullets journey to Emmitsburg where they meet the Mt. St. Mary's aggregation. A large delegation of enthusiasts are expected to make the trip to the Maryland town for the second from the last game of the season and it is reported that several bus loads are scheduled to head a parade of local fans and fannettes to the Mt. St. Mary's gym.

IF RHEUMATIC BEGIN ON SALTS

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry, Avoid Exposure, Eat No Sweets.

Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat no sweets of any kind for a while, drink lots of water and above all take a spoonful of Jad Salts occasionally to help keep down uric and toxic acids.

Rheumatism is caused by poison toxins, called acids, which are generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed ,thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this poison, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain ,called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove body waste also to stimulate the kidneys ,thus helping to rid the blood of these rheumatic poisons.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Adv.

JUST FOLKS

By Edgar A. Guest

DREAMS

When I was a lad I longed to be
A sailor sailing the open sea,
And I cherished a wish through a happy year
To work as a railroad engineer.
Then Peary lived, and I pledged my soul
To go with them to the northern pole.

And I was a soldier brave and true
With shoulder straps on my coat of blue;
And I did real things in my boyish dreams,
Such as tunneling hills and bridging streams.
Now here I am come to forty-three
And I never have sailed the open sea.

I never have sat as engineer
Watching to see that the lights are clear.
I have bridged no streams and have sunk no mines,
I have spent my life just writing lines;
But the boy still lives and thrills as then
In the glorious deeds of the fighting men.

COMMUNICATIONS

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

In The Times of January 6, I read with great regret that it has become necessary for the commission to lay traps to catch the battlefield guides who are abridging the trip over the field, and for the accomplishment of which to employ the tourists in a monitorial capacity.

I don't question the utility of the movement on the part of the commission, for its rules, which should be obeyed, are so flagrantly disregarded, that the guides who are responsible for the violations are not showing the regard for the commission commensurate with the dignity of its high office. Public indignation is being clamorously aroused on the subject and those indignities, which are an offense against the personal dignity of the commission, should be cut out at any cost. If there are any guides who persist in the matter of misusing the public and disgracing the commission, they should be dismissed from the field, and made to feel the humiliation of social astracism in a degree that might improve their status.

The guides' organization, the motto of which should be a higher education and the adoption of a high ethical standard, if managed aright, is a good thing, and every member of the force should join it. It should not antagonize the commission; it should be an auxiliary to it ,and also to the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce.

There is no doubt but that there is need of government on the part of the commission, that would not be necessary if the guide force as a body would apply the Ten Commandments in its own conduct, and correct the wrongs within itself, by a voluntary determination to obey those placed in authority of them, sounding the warning that the commission will certainly govern in the matter of existing evils, unless they are eliminated by the guide force itself.

Sometime ago, in conversation with one of the best guides, and one of the best educated guides, I urged the necessity on the part of the guide force of a high standard of ethics. He scouted the idea of the guide force considering anything ethical, as if there were no redeeming qualities in it. I would not do the guide force that great injustice, for there are guides with whom I am acquainted whose ability and life are worthy of imitation.

The adoption of a top notch ethical standard is the only sure and safe foundation upon which to build any of the greatly varied vocational superstructures.

I am glad to see the character of the personnel of the prospective accession to the guide force creates anew a desire in one's mind for the privilege of rubbing up against an element of such brilliant mental polish and refinement.

SENDING STUDENTS HOME

To the Editor The Times.

We noticed in The Times recently where the heads of the institutions of learning of Gettysburg did some culling among the students. This was a wise step. Recently one Sherman Fried and wife, of Seven Stars, went to town. When they entered the town, they saw piles of young men in the street pounding the life out of each other. Some were carried into the buildings all over bloody.

Sherman said, "Rosie, you hold the horse, I must go for the police and cops. These men will kill each other."

Sherman meets a man on the street, "Say mister, where is the police or cops?"

"What do you want with them?"

"Don't you see those young men trying to kill each other?"

"Let them kill each other. It's nothing to you. Them are the students."

"Well, I am surprised," said Sherman. "I thought we had civilization in this town. So this is a fair sample of the material that our preachers, lawyers, doctors, and other great men are to be made out of. So Rosie and I will get out of town as quick as possible."

A minister went from one town to another in a western state lately. In his sermon in the town to which he went as a visitor he said that the church college in the town where he then lived had fifteen hundred students, sons of pious parents, and not one of the students could repeat the Ten Commandments to save his life.

So we believe it a wise plan for the faculty of our institutions to do some culling. Not more than about 6 per cent of our young men are Christians. They belong to the church. The records of our matrimonial agencies are confirmatory of this. The men all want women who do not belong to any church, and many of the women who belong to the orthodox churches are careful to say that they hold broad and liberal views. Darwin would call that an important factor in natural selection.

During the past 60 years we have witnessed the disappearance of every family altar in this section of the county, and what the world needs today is the return of religion into the homes of our land, in order to drive out sneaks, liars, perjurers, bootleggers and all wickedness. More religion is needed in the home life. We believe a great effort of the pen and pulpit should be made to impress this most important duty of greater consecration upon all families. More stress should be laid upon the family altar, if any exists in the county. The neglect of these altars in our land is the real cause for the present day degeneracy. The old religion awakening should once more be made in our county, and we would gain a greater per cent of knowledge in our young men in our institutions of learning.

S. S. W. HAMMERS.

Tyrone, Pa.
Feb. 28, '25.

Mr. Editor:

I read in the paper of your drive for an ambulance. I want to say to the people of Gettysburg and also of the county that it will be one of the best investments they have ever made. We have one in Tyrone and they sure are on the job; no one knows when they will need it, but it is fine when you do.

If you wish to publish this, do so. My father was raised at the Weikert homestead on the battlefield, near the Pennsylvania Monument, and I am always glad to see Gettysburg get something worth while.

Yours very truly,
HARRY WEIKERT.

MR. TAXPAYER

Do you know that the independent grocers of your community are doing their very best to prove themselves friends to you? Did you realize, Mr. Taxpayer, the mighty big part you play when your children and our children daily take their books and go happily off to school, their dreams of advancement coming true because of the wonderful advantages of education given them in this community of ours? Don't you appreciate a little help in the matter of paying for these advantages? Do you know that the chain stores only pay taxes where the main office is located? You receive no taxes from them. Do you understand that when you patronize a chain store and send to the city for your goods your cash is practically out of circulation, as far as our community is concerned? Do the chain stores and city store contribute very much to the churches, Red Cross, hospitals, fire companies and any other local advancement to our community, that we, as taxpayers, are asked to support and do support? Do the chain stores and city stores, when you're just a little hard up, lend a helping hand in the form of credit? Do they deliver your goods free of charge, rain or shine, early or late, or any other way, and do they a lot of things that the local grocer will do for you? Mr. Taxpayer, when you want a little favor do you go to the chain stores or send to the city for your favor? We consider your good will your greatest asset. Patronize your home community.

Be humble and gentle in your conversation, of few words, but always pertinent when you speak, hearing out before your attempt to answer, and then speaking as if you would persuade, not impose.

Attention Mr. Prospective Auto Buyer!

Did you ever consider that the minute you buy an automobile it at once becomes second-handed and you would have to take considerable depreciation if you cared to dispose of it for another make of car immediately? We have on hand more than fifty (50) used cars of various makes that have been driven from 700 to 15,000 miles that cost two and three times as much as we are asking for them at present. Don't you think a car of this kind will give you far better service than a low priced new car with cheap material and poor workmanship? A car of this kind will give you more comfort just as economical in operation when you consider there are more miles built into a car of this kind. We guarantee every used car must be as represented. We do not have a dissatisfied customer on our used cars to the best of our knowledge. Below is a list of the cars we have to offer:

CHURCHES SHOW GAIN DURING '24

Membership Increase of 690,000 During Past Twelve Month Period Shown By Report.

New York—Despite factional disputes and the expansion of distracting influences the churches of America claim to have showed a membership gain of 690,000 in 1924.

According to a census of religions compiled by Dr. H. K. Carroll, for the Christian Herald, the total membership in churches of this country now is 46,142,000. A gain of 366,000 is reported for the Evangelical churches.

Changes are gradually appearing in the order of denominations as to numbers. The Roman Catholic church keeps well in advance of all the other communions with nearly 16,000,000 communicants and its more than 18,000,000 population. Its estimated increased in 1924 was more than 220,000.

The second largest body is the Methodist Episcopal church with 4,438,494. In order of strength to the other churches with more than 1,000,000 are: The Southern Baptist Convention, over 3,500,000; the Negro Baptist Convention, more than 3,000,000; the Methodist Episcopal South, 2,470,000; the Presbyterian Church Northern, 1,791,559; Northern Baptist Convention, 1,382,000; Disciples of Christ, 1,351,000; and the Protestant Episcopal church, 1,139,000.

Methodists Second

When the order by groups is considered, after the Roman Catholic and associated churches, with 16,093,000, come the Methodist, 15 bodies, second with 8,700,000; the Baptist with 14 bodies, 8,227,225; the Lutheran, 18 bodies, 2,503,642; the Presbyterian, 9 bodies, 2,500,466; the Disciples of Christ, 2 bodies, 1,668,906, and the Episcopalian, two bodies, 1,148,000.

"While we are passing in annual review the affairs of the churches in the United States," Doctor Carroll says, "it must not be forgotten that these same churches have a great and growing constituency in the rest of the world, and some are reporting larger gains, mostly in non-Christian Asia and Africa, than in the United States. The new world missionary atlas shows that this foreign work is carried on in larger measure by the missionaries of the United States than by all other societies combined.

"In the last twenty-five years the number of Christian communicants have increased in Asia from 622,460 to 1,533,057; in Africa from 342,857 to 1,015,683; in China from 112,808 to 402,539; and in India from 376,617 to 811,505. Everywhere indigenous peoples have been moved by the Christian appeal."

When the heart of man is serene and tranquil, he wants to enjoy nothing but himself.

SEEK TO BRING TOURISTS HERE

A concentrated effort to direct the attention of the touring motorists of the country to the scenic and historic wonders of Pennsylvania is about to be made by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation and the American Automobile association, it was announced here today.

The first step in the plan will be the issue; in May, of a special number of the American Motorist, the official organ of the organized motorists of the country, devoted exclusively to the exploitation of the Keystone Commonwealth. The best qualified writers in the state have been enlisted in the enterprise and the result of their efforts will undoubtedly be to stimulate interest in Pennsylvania touring. The 78 motor clubs throughout the state that are affiliated with the P. M. F. are all keenly interested in this venture and are giving it their active support.

Leading Articles

Frederic A. Godcharles, of Milton Pennsylvania, former deputy secretary of the state, will write descriptive stories of the leading routes through the state, with the scenic beauties and historic features of the state as he background. Mr. God charles is one of the outstanding exponents of Pennsylvania. He is the author of "Daily Stories of Pennsylvania" and of "Pennsylvania Past and Present," which are syndicated to forty daily newspapers.

Dr. John T. Farris, author of "Seeing Pennsylvania," and "Seeing the Middle West", will concentrate especially on carrying the tourist through Pennsylvania's historic trails His experience and training as a travel writer eminently equip Dr. Farris for this work.

Hon. Paul D. Wright, Secretary of Highways, will tell what his department is doing to make for improved motoring conditions in the Keystone State.

State. A Destination

Chester L. Saxby, nationally famous as a descriptive writer, will contribute a special article interpreting the individuality of Pennsylvania and the deep-rooted characteristics of her soil and her people which make the state "not a route but a destination" as Mr Saxby puts it.

M. H. James, of Harrisburg, who has written a great many articles on the scenic attractions of the state, will seek to exploit these in order that the stranger may become better acquainted with the wonders of Pennsylvania.

These are only a few of the articles planned. In addition to the special features there is now in course of preparation a historical map of the state which locates every important point of interest to the motor tourist. This will be the most complete map of its kind ever gotten out and all the resources of the touring and mapping divisions of the A. A. A. have been enlisted to make it is complete as possible.

Every man rejoices twice when he has a partner of his joy.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my mother, Florence V. Beck, who passed away nine years ago today, March 7th, 1916.

Mother, if you only knew
Of the trials I've been through,
How my heart has ached in pain,
How I've hoped that I could gain
A place in Heaven there with you.
Where I'd know that all was true,
Many a tear I've shed for thee,
No one else can tell but me.

My home has never been as bright,
My heart has never been as light,
As it was when you were here,
Oh, my darling mother, dear.
Mother, I know it was for the best,
That God called you to His home for rest,
But sometimes there are temptations and trials,
That if you were here would flee for miles.

I try to be good and have patience,
But, oh, the horrid temptations,
I know that I'm not here to stay,
So I hope, aspire to pray,
That some day your loving face I'll see
And remain in God's palace with thee,
By her sad and lonely daughter, Clara.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of my dear father, Rufus Lauver, who passed away a year ago today.

Gone but not forgotten.

Mrs. Charles Myers.

FARM CALENDAR

At the meeting on the Roy Peters' farm, Aspers, eighteen farmers were present. On the farm of John W. Bream, Cashtown, fifteen farmers were present. On the farm of A. W. Hartlaub, Square Corners, eighteen farmers were present. L. W. Steelman, poultry extension specialist, conducted the meetings. Every grower of chicks in the county, who was not able to attend one of these meetings, should obtain the chick feeding chart now at hand at the county agent's office.

Dairy Ration Meetings

Three dairy ration meetings were held yesterday and R. H. Olmstead and H. B. Musser presented many phases of dairy farming which mean profit to those who are carrying out many of these important matters.

On the farm of George Milhimes, New Chester, eighteen farmers were present. Farm of Mrs. George Wagner, Table Rock, fourteen farmers were present.

The evening meeting at York Springs, held in Bushey Hall, was one of the best meetings we have had in the county from the standpoint of attendance and interest since we have been having these combination dairy ration and farm crops meetings. Fifty farmers were present.

At all these meetings R. H. Olmstead has been stressing water and the cheaper sources of protein. Mr. Musser has been stressing the value of adaptable seed, particularly as regards alfalfa and clovers, warning farmers not to seed with foreign grown or southern unadaptable clover in alfalfa seed, and the use of lime, methods of seeding and many other factors which insure for a catch of legumes.

Watch Your Utensils

To save gas use proper utensils.

For quick cooking use aluminum, glass or tin utensils. For long and slow cooking use cast aluminum or cast iron utensils. Roasts, popovers, etc., should be cooked in these utensils. They prevent scorching and can be used in high temperatures.

To toast a few pieces of bread, use a small toaster over an open burner. Do not use the oven.

We will gladly give you other gas-saving suggestions.
